Starting in July the Cary Natural Health e-message will take on a new format. To make it successful so these valuable messages can continue, we are asking our present e-message recipients (like you) to pass the message on to your friends that may be interested in helpful alternative products and techniques for health and wellness.

The medical community is bombarding the public with new items and the FDA is processing new items so quickly that unsafe products end up in the hands of the public. That is one reason people are moving back to safe and effective alternatives.

It was good to hear from a local doctor's office when they called about a safe product to give to a two-month old baby who had chronic diarrhea. This doctor was concerned about giving someone that young a harsh prescription or over-the-counter product. We offered slippery elm as a safe alternative. Slippery Elm has been used for centuries by young and old for just such a reason as a safe alternative with no side effects. This was exactly what a two-month old needed.
